Richco's – Employment Guidelines / Policy

Purpose

To outline the guidelines for all employees for vacation, pay and employee performance – which include probationary employees, hourly onsite employees, hourly office employees and salaried employees.

Richco's Obligations to Employees

All hourly employees are paid for every hour worked at your place of work.
All salaried employees are paid as per the employee contract agreement.

Florida is an at-will employment state, meaning employers can generally terminate employees for any reason (or no reason) as long as it's not discriminatory or illegal. This applies during the probationary period.

Probationary Employees (First 90 days of Employment)

During the initial 90 days of employment (probationary period) Richco does not have any obligation to pay for vacation days / state holidays or sickness times.

Please refer to the employment agreement for individual agreements.

Sign-on Bonus

Any new employee who are eligible for a sign on bonus – is paid after one month of full-time employment. The sign-on bonus is only eligible if the employee is still working for Richco after the first month.

Employee Initials: _____

Vacation Time & State Vacation Dates

Florida law does not require private employers to offer paid or unpaid vacation time. However, please refer to your individual employment agreement.

Employer Discretion

Paid vacation time is at the discretion of Richco and is dependent on position and years of employment. Please refer to your own employment agreement regarding the eligibility of vacation time.

All eligible vacation time runs from January – December.

Booking Vacation Time

All state vacation days (for those applicable) automatically have these days as paid (please refer to your own employment agreement regarding the eligibility of vacation time).

All hourly employees within their first year of employment are not eligible for any paid vacation or state vacation (unless specifically stated in your own employment agreement at the commencement of your employment).

All vacation time must be requested in advance on the Monday app and approved by your team leader / management.

Unused Vacation Time

Florida law does not require employers to allow employees to roll over unused vacation time from one year to the next. Therefore, Richco implements a "use-it-or-lose-it" policy, where employees forfeit any unused vacation time at the end of each calendar year.

Sickness

We understand that everyone suffers from illness from time to time.

Please ensure that you do not come to work when suffering from contagious illnesses or when symptoms make it unsafe for you to perform your job duties. This helps prevent the spread of illnesses in the workplace and ensures the employee's own safety and well-being.

If you arrive at work unwell – you will be sent home – unpaid (unless if otherwise stated within your employment agreement).

When you are sick – please ensure that you complete the sickness form on the Monday app – well in advance of your shift. Alternatively – please contact / text your team leader / management of your sickness – well in advance of your shift.

It is not acceptable to notify us at the time of your shift of your unattendance.

Job Performance / Probationary Period

All employees (regardless of position) can be placed back onto a probation period for poor performance, even if they have previously completed a probationary period or are already a permanent employee.

In Florida, employers can reduce an employee's pay due to poor performance. Therefore, if an employee is not completing their job role or their updates on the Monday app – the employee can be placed back onto a probationary period and a reduction in their pay.

All employees who are not performing their job tasks will be notified in advance prior to the probationary period being actioned and pay deduction on future pay.

Any employees who are placed on a probationary period will be for a period of 90 days and will revert to the probationary period terms of employment.

Employee Initials: _____

Gross Misconduct

Any action of gross misconduct will result in termination of employment with immediate effect.

This refers to behavior demonstrating a conscious disregard for the employer's interests, a deliberate violation of reasonable standards, or negligence that shows culpability. This includes deliberately violating established company rules, particularly after receiving warnings.

Property Damage

As per the Fair Labor Standards Act, employers can deduct for damage caused by an employee's negligence or intentional misconduct. Richco will therefore deduct money for any damage to tool, equipment or vehicles due to employee negligence or intentional misconduct. This will be documented and provided to the employee at fault prior to any deduction of pay.

Accidental damage without negligence will not result in deductions.

Uniform / PPE

Richco will provide Richco's logo T-shirts and PPE at the beginning of employment. The employees must maintain their PPE equipment. Any lost or damaged PPE must be reported immediately to the team leader / management for replacement.

Any neglected or lost PPE will be replaced, and the cost of replacement will be at the discretion of Richco. Any repeat offenders (for lost / damaged / neglected PPE) will be charged for their replacement. If the employee cannot perform their job role due to the loss / damage / neglect of equipment – they will be sent home without pay. Ultimately Richco operates on a "safety first" basis and PPE needs to be worn to perform your job role.

Richco t-shirts will be replaced on a quarterly basis – any new t-shirt requests will need to be issued to the office for replacement. If you arrive to your workplace without a Richco logo T-shirt / hi-vis – you maybe sent home (without pay).

If you arrive wearing another companies / competitor branded shirt – this will be seen as a major violation of our company rules, and you will be sent home without pay and will be placed on an immediate probationary period.

If you are not happy with the fabric of the Richco T-shirt's provided – we can provide the Richco logo artwork for you to have placed onto your own non-branded / plain T-shirts (at your cost) - as long as it is in conjunction with our color scheme / guidelines.

ALL site employees (regardless of position) MUST be wearing Richco logo clothing.
